Elk Grove businessman provides Drug Awareness material to Laguna Creek High School.

Elk Grove California: When Elk Grove resident, businessman and local High School Baseball Coach, Tom Alston contacted Laguna Creek High School Principal Doug Craig about drug awareness presentation materials, prepared and distributed by The Friends of Narconon, the Principal was quick to respond, “We are always looking for additional resources to encourage students stay drug free.” The Friends of Narconon are a non-profit, public benefit, organization that specializes in providing factual, up-to-date information about harmful drugs for school kids. “These materials can be used in the classroom to educate groups of students as well as for one-on-one counseling of students. Maybe we can use these in lieu of extra days of suspension for offenders,” added Principal Craig.

Over the past 10 years, The Friends of Narconon’s ground-breaking presentations have been researched, refined and presented in an entertaining, yet educational way. “Over 6,500 U.S. schools have already used this program with over 7 million students viewing the videos. The current goal is to reach all the kids in public schools across America and throughout the world with video programs. It’s fast, easy and gets results,” noted Tom Alston. “The drug problem cannot be eliminated solely by rehabilitation, but through an effective means to deter youth from ever becoming involved with drugs to begin with,” noted Coach Alston.

Tom, through his company, Aero & Marine Tax Professionals, is the local contact point for The Friends of Narconon and copies of ‘Marijuana the Myth’, the video as well as other drug awareness information. “We’re happy to provide this information to student body’s,” added Alston.

Friends of Narconon, largely comprised of volunteers and professionals from all walks of life claim it is through these associations that they provide community support via increased public awareness. Research has shown that effective drug education does work. Narconon has developed and refined one of the most powerful drug education programs—that has proven itself to get results time and again. As a result, The Friends of Narconon have “Truth About Drugs Educator” kits that are specifically tailored for Elementary, Middle and High School audiences.
